Where Every Floor Has A Story To Tell®
Reclaimed & FSC® Certified Flooring

Engineered Antique Heart Pine

RECLAIMED

In 1974, Willie Drake traveled to West Virginia in search of rare American Chestnut among the area's historic Appalachian barns. While combing the mountainside for usable wood, Willie realized there was an abundance of beautiful abandoned wood waiting to be reclaimed and reused...

Thus Mountain Lumber Company was born.

A Lifetime of Adventure

For over three decades, Mountain Lumber has traveled the globe in search of rare and beautiful woods within historic structures slated for demolition. Every piece of wood we reclaim is hand-selected for its richness in history, character and beauty. We carefully select only the highest quality wood to ensure our floors are the finest in the world.

We believe every floor should be unique. That is why we custom-make our reclaimed and newly-sawn floors. Our expert prefinishing team will hand texture and custom finish your floor to create any desired look.

To maintain the tightest quality control, we inspect and mill every board we reclaim at our facilities in Central Virginia. By controlling every step of our manufacturing process, Mountain Lumber is able to provide not only consistent grading but also a wide variety of custom products. Anything you can imagine, we can create, from custom flooring patterns, to paneling, countertops and millwork.

A "Reclaimed Forest" in Danville, Virginia

Gray Barn Board

Reclaimed Antique Hardwoods

Prior to the 1900's most barns were constructed using wood that grew closest to the property. In Appalachia, that meant oak, chestnut, poplar, hickory and pine. The wood was either hand-hewn using an axe or squared with an adze and beam sizes were limited to what could be moved by man and horse.

As farming methods modernize, the barns of the past increasingly suffer from lack of use and repair. Eventually, they surrender to the elements they were built to keep at bay. Rather than abandoning the wood, Mountain Lumber reclaims it and restores it to its former brilliance.

Why Choose FSC® Recycled?

Mountain Lumber's reclaimed wood flooring carries the FSC Recycled label. The Forest Stewardship Council™ (FSC) promotes responsible forestry worldwide. Promoting the use of post-consumer recycled materials helps alleviate the pressure placed on natural forests and prevents millions of board feet of rare and valuable wood from being discarded into landfills.

HEART PINE

Prefinished Distressed Heart Pine

Reclaimed Antique Heart Pine

Prior to European settlement, Longleaf Pine covered as much as 90 million acres of land, stretching from Texas to Virginia. The settlers and their descendants prized the Longleaf Pine for its size, strength and abundance. Sadly, decades of deforestation and overharvesting have nearly eradicated this noble species.

Fortunately, this beautiful wood is still available through reclamation. During the Industrial Revolution, mills and factories were built along the East Coast using heart pine as the primary framing material. Every year, more of these 19th century facilities become slated for demolition. Now, this rich amber wood can share its beauty with future generations.

Did You Know?

Every Mountain Lumber reclaimed product is more distinct than its newly-sawn counterpart. Antique wood has tighter growth rings, indicative of the centuries before Colonization when trees grew slowly and naturally. Many antique boards contain character marks such as nail holes and saw marks that were created lifetimes ago using only hand tools. Although we offer consistent grading, each Mountain Lumber reclaimed floor is 100% unique.

HARVEST

FSC Certified Harvest Flooring

When Mountain Lumber began in 1974, we did green flooring the only way we could, by sourcing our wood from structures slated for demolition. Today, we find we are not alone in our desire to provide ethically sourced products. The Forest Stewardship

Council provides the strictest governance on how forests should be managed in order to protect them for future generations. Our FSC certification allows us to track each certified board to a responsibly managed forest; thus ensuring your purchase promotes responsible forestry.

TEXTURE

Custom Color Stains

We work with homeowners and professionals to remove the guesswork from prefinishing. Our multi-step process enhances the natural beauty of our wood and protects it for generations to come.

We offer an unlimited number of custom colors and provide in-house color matching to recreate your desired look. Our expert color technicians bring over thirty years of experience to our manufacturing team and can recreate any look from a centuries old country oak to an ultra-modern white wash. Our representatives will work with you to transform your vision into reality.

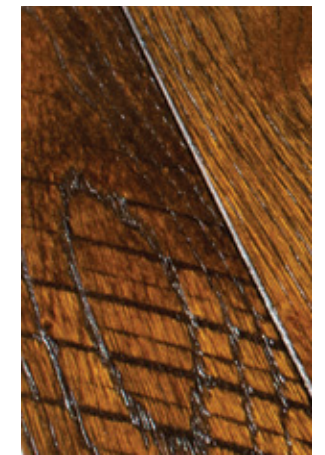

Hand Textured Surfaces

Our expert craftsmen create handmade surfaces that can transform a new wood floor into one that is infused with the beauty and charm of a bygone era.

Wire brushing lifts away soft fibers allowing the denser wood grain to appear more prominently.

Hand scraping recreates the time-worn beauty of antique flooring.

Hand distressing recreates the look of original saw marks found in the historic beams we reclaim at a fraction of the cost.

BEAMS & MILLWORK

Reclaimed Antique Beams

The same antique timbers and beams used to create Mountain Lumber's reclaimed floors are also available for purchase. You can apply these beams to suit your needs – either for their handsome looks, their unbending structural support, or both! Antique beams are available in a variety of colors and styles.

Reclaimed Antique Mantels

Similar in design value to the ornamental and structural beams, Mountain Lumber's reclaimed mantels are scaled down to fit most applications. Mantels can be ordered in Historic Heart Pine® or other woods including Antique American Oak and Antique American Chestnut. Please call for pricing.

Millwork & Stair Parts

Like our flooring, our millwork is produced to the very highest standards. All stair treads are constructed using more than one board to provide extra stability, and carefully matched so the joint is virtually invisible. We also offer custom staining and finishing for our stair treads to ensure they match your floor. The talented craftsmen in our mill shop can do almost anything you can imagine - just call us and ask!

All Mountain Lumber moldings are architecturally drawn and designed to classic proportions. These accents can also be ordered to match any floor.

Countertops

Beyond their good looks, Mountain Lumber's custom-made countertops are designed and built for extra stability. Offered in a variety of woods and grades as both plank and butcherblock designs, these work surfaces are 1 1/2" thick, up to 25" deep and available in lengths up to 14'. You can specify different thicknesses and depths to meet your specific project's needs. We also offer countertops in different wood varieties. Please call us for custom quotes.
